FLETCHER GENEALOGY:

AN ACCOUNT

OF THE DESCENDANTS

OF

ROBERT FLETCHER,

OF CONCORD, MASS.

No. 124 West Fifty-fourth Street, New York, August 1, 1871.

DEAR KINSFOLK:

I present in this volume the result of long and arduous labor. When a boy, I came across a manuscript diagram, or tree, which was made by ELIJAH (696), and which interested me so much that I made additions to it, and, in 1848, published a genealogical chart of the family. That publication had the effect of awakening some interest in our family history, and I have since that time been more or less engaged, when opportunity has offered, in making collections and obtaining the requisite facts and data, hoping to put them into other hands for publication. Failing in this latter point, I have myself proceeded with the labor of getting the work through the press. In securing tasteful and accurate typography, much credit is due to the printers, Messrs. Alfred Mudge & Son, of Boston. I have been conscientiously careful that the whole should be correct and reliable, and to insert nothing as fact that is not well authenticated.

Errors have undoubtedly occurred in repeatedly transcribing, and otherwise; and any one who may discover any incorrectness, of any kind, is requested to inform me, so that a leaf of such corrections may be printed, which will be sent to each subscriber. And, furthermore, I shall always be pleased to receive additional accounts, which may at some time be published as supplementary to the present volume. It is possible, if leisure should occur, that I may hereafter have a chart or genealogical tree prepared and printed, having barely the names, arranged to show all the connections at a glance.

My correspondents and helpers have been so numerous that I must thank them all together, but as heartily as though it were done singly and by name.

I have faith that these records will be prized by the generations to come; and I also trust that their influence and tendency will be only for good.

Respectfully,

EDWARD H. FLETCHER.

INTRODUCTION.

A GENEALOGY in book form cannot be so quickly understood as in a diagram or tree; but a little examination will render it intelligible. In this volume every name has its number placed at the left, and each one which has a plus mark, thus +, on the right, recurs again in capital letters, with the same number it bore first, placed in parenthesis on the right. The plan here adopted contemplates the grouping of the members of the respective branches, each branch starting from the fourth generation.

Part I. comprises four generations, which are all the Fletchers known to have been in America before the year 1700, except the following:—

Moses Fletcher came in the "Mayflower," and died in a few months, unmarried.

Edward Fletcher, of Boston; cutler by trade; admitted townsman, member of church, and freeman in 1840. Probate overseer; became a preacher, and preached at Dover, N. H.; went back to England, and had a living (says Calamy, II. 330) at Dunsburn, from whence he was ejected, and he then came again to Boston. In his will, February, 1660, he mentions no children, and probably had none. [Savage's Gen. Dict.]

Joseph, Miles, and Ludovick Fletcher, are found among immigrants to Virginia in 1635.

John Fletcher, of Wethersfield, m. before 1641, Mary, dau. of widow Joyce Ward. Removed to Milford, and joined the church 1641, after living there two years. He died Apr. 18, 1662. His children were: Sarah, christened 1641; Hannah, chr. 1643; Elizabeth, chr. 1645; Samuel, chr. 1649, died young; Abigail, chr. 1652, and thus leaving no male issue. [Savage's Gen. Dict.]

Joseph Fletcher, of Salisbury, Ms., was probably an immigrant. It is recorded, May 18, 1653, "Josep Fletcher servant to William Hall of Salisbury is exempted from any presse this summer, being the chief stay of his [Hall's] family." He married June 18, 1660, and was then twenty-four years old, and a farmer. They had a daughter, Mary, born April 9, 1662, who died Jan. 23, 1683. He died March 15, 1700, and his wife three days previous.

Seth Fletcher was a minister in Wells, Me., 1656, where he married Mary, daughter of Major Bryan Pendleton, 1665; removed to Saco, Me., and was there in 1674; removed to Elizabeth, N. J., where he was settled, and where he died Aug. 1682. His estate was valued £559. 5s. He had only one son, Pendleton.

Pendleton Fletcher, last named, was born 1666, and when fourteen years old, was adopted by his grandfather, Major Bryan Pendleton. He married Sarah, daughter of Roger Hill, and had several children, whose names are unknown. He was captured by the Indians in 1697, and carried prisoner to Canada, where he died in captivity before 1702. (See p. 244.)

Pendleton Fletcher, a grandson of the last-mentioned Pendleton, was born 1707; lived in Biddeford, Me.; died 1807, ac. 99½.

Following Part I. are the twenty-three branches of the family, some of the parts embracing several branches.

The descendants of Robert, whose names are herein contained, number within twoscore of four thousand, which, divided into generations, are as follows:

1st generation, 1; 2d, 5; 3d, 20; 4th, 82; 5th, 169; 6th, 406; 7th, 854; 8th, 1414; 9th, 891; 10th, 117; 11th, 1. Total, 3960.

ABBREVIATIONS.

Bap., Baptist; b., born; bro., brother; chr., christened; Coll., College; Cong., Congregationalist; Dart., Dartmouth; dau., daughter; d., died; Dea., Deacon; Epis., Episcopalian; grad., graduated; Harv., Harvard; m., married; min., minister; Pres., Presbyterian; rem., removed; res., residence or resides; unm., unmarried; Unit., Unitarian; Univ., Universalist.

FLETCHER GENEALOGY.

PART I.

COMPRISING THE FIRST FOUR GENERATIONS.

The name was originally written Fledger, and was the name of the trade of a maker of arrows; or, as some think, of affixing the feather upon the arrow—fledging it.* The French word flechier has precisely the same meaning, and some have hence inferred a French extraction. All the traditions concur, however, in making our early ancestors of English or Welsh stock; and Yorkshire, one of the northern counties of England, is named as the spot wh they emigrated to America. The name has been, and is, common there. Rev. Elijah Fletcher, of Hopkin N. H. (b. 1747, d. 1786), the first, so far as we know, who made genealogical collections of the family, believed that our great ancestor, Robert Fletcher, came from Yorkshire; and that account was gathered when Robert's great-grand-children were living.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. ROBERT ¹ settled at Concord, Mass., in 1630; in which year seventeen ships arrived in Massachusetts Bay and at Plymouth. He had then three sons, Luke, William, and Samuel, and was himself thirty-eight years of age. It was five years later that Concord was organized, the twentieth town incorporated within what are now the limits of Massachusetts, and his name appears in the earliest records of that town.† In the court files of Middlesex county his name broad meadows of the Concord river, or Musketaquid (grass-grown) of the Indians. They were, however, disappointed by the "povertie and meannesse" of the soil and the "badness and wetnes" of the meadows; and ten years after the organization of the town, and fifteen after the arrival of Robert ¹ in this country, the discouraging state of affairs in the settlement is thus set forth by its leading citizens:

"To the Wor:ll Governor, Deputy Governor, with the rest of the Assistants and Deputies of the Court now assembled. The humble petition of the Inhabitants of Concord sheweth:

That, whereas, we have lived most of us in Concord since our coming over into these parts, and are not conscious unto ourselves that we have been grossly negligent to employ that talent God hath put into our hands to our best understanding: Neither have we found any special hand of God gone out against us, only the povertie and meannesse of the place we live in not answering the labor bestowed upon it, together with the badness and wetnes of the meadowes, hath consumed most of the estates of those who have hitherto borne the burden of changes amongst us, and therewith the bodily abilities of maney. This being soe eminent above what hath befallen other plantations, hath occasioned many at several times to depart from us, and this last winter, in the end of it, a 7th or 8th part of the Towne went to the southward with Mr. Jones, and many more resolved to goe after them, so that maney houses in the Towne stand voyde of Inhabitants, and more are likely to be; and we are confident that if conscience had not restrained, fearing the dissolution of the Towne by their removeall, very many had departed to one place or other where Providence should have hopefully promised a livelchood.

This our condition we thought it our duty to informe you of, fearing lest if more go from we we shall neither remayne as a congregation nor a towne, and then such as are most un-

This our condition we thought it our duty to informe you of, fearing lest if more go from as we shall neither remayne as a congregation nor a towne, and then such as are most unwilling to depart, whiles there remayne any hopes of ordinance among us, will be enforced to leave the place, which if it should come to pass, wee desire this may testify on the behalf of such it was not a mynd unsatisfied with what was convenient, which occasioned them to depart, but meerely to attaine a subsistence for themselves and such as depend on them, and to enjoy ordinances. It it be sayd we may goe to other places and meet with as many difficulties as here, experience herein satisfies as saginst many reasons. Such as hardly subsisted with us, and were none of the ablest among us, either for labour or ordering their occasions, have much thriven in other places they have removed unto. Our humble request is that you would be pleased to consider how unable we are to beare with our brethren the common charges, the premises considered.

This petition was presented May 14, 1645, just one month before the decisive battle of Naseby, between Charles I. and Oliver Cromwell. The petition was favorably received, and from the fact, which appears from the records, that the assessment of Concord in 1640 of hith pounds for the "common char, as," was reduced to hiteen in 1645, it is inferred that the court was satisfied of the truth of the representations of the petitioners.

WILLIAM² (3), b. in England, 1622; came with his father to Concord, Ms., when he was eight years old. He was admitted freeman May 10, 1643.* He m. Lydia Bates in Concord, Ms., Oct. 7, 1645, and in 1653, settled in Chelmsford, Ms.; of which he was one of the first inhabitants, and held the office of selectman, to which office "he was chosen Nov. 22, 1654. This first publick meeting was holden at his house."

On the court files of Middlesex county his name frequently appears. In 1665, as petitioner for a road; same year, a bill of costs for his servant being put in house of correction; same year, bill of costs for suit against William Shaw. 1663, as appraiser of an estate. —In 1671, "Motion to court by William Fletcher, of Chelmsford. His sister Cary, on her death-bed, desired him and her husband to take care of her children. Willing to be engaged for the child Sherybiah Kebby."— In 1673, as commissioner for Chelmsford.

The birth of his dau. Lydia only is found on the Concord records,—the first birth of a Fletcher that is recorded in America.

A letter dated Feb. 15, 1676, "from the committee of the militia of Chelmsford," reads: "To our honord governor and counsail in Boston, mercy and peace: May it please yor honours." [Here represents the alarming condition from Indian outrages and depredations, and requests help.] Signed by Sam. Adams, Samuel Fletcher (4)2, William Fletcher $(3)^2$.

His tract of land embraced what is now the city of Lowell; and a part of his land, a farm near the meeting-house in Chelmsford, remains as it has been for more than 200 years in possession of the family, and is now occupied by Gardner Fletcher. (1221) †

† Mr. Gardner Fletcher relates, that the tradition in his branch is that Robert had a brother William, who immigrated at the same time. The only trace the writer has been able to find of a William who could have been brother of Robert, is from the records of Middletown, Ct.: "Rev. Samuel Stow, m. Hope, dau. of William Fletcher, Esq., 1649."

^{*} The freeman's oath, required before entering upon the duties and privileges of citizenship, upon the attainment of majority, in Vermont, is as follows: "You solemnly swear (or affirm) that when you give your vote of suffrage touching any matter that concerns the State of Vermont, you will do it so as in your conscience you shall judge will most conduce to the best good of the same, as established by the constitution, without fear or favor of any man. So help you God." [See appendix A.]

108. viii. Elizabeth, b. Sept. 14, 1720.

The foregoing gives all the information we have of three generations; and also of the fourth, except those known to have had issue, the particulars concerning whom will be found hereinafter, where they are placed at the heads of the various branches, viz:

Joshua ⁴ (27), part II. Paul ⁴ (28), part III. John ⁴ (31), part IV. Joseph ⁴ (32), and Jonathan ⁴ (34), part V. Jonas ⁴ (36), Josiah ⁴ (52), Robert ⁴ (55), and Daniel ⁴ (56), part VI. Samuel ⁴ (62), Isaac ⁴ (66), and William ⁴ (67), part VII. Eleazer ⁴ (73), part VIII. William ⁴ (75), part IX. Samuel ⁴ (76), part X. Samuel ⁴ (83), Joseph ⁴ (84), John ⁴ (87), and Timothy ⁴ (93), part XI. Samuel ⁴ (96), Francis ⁴ (99), Hezekiah ⁴ (101), and William ⁴ (104), part XII.

It will be observed, that of the first four generations, all, of whose occupations we have any account, were farmers, and many of them were large landholders. This taste for agriculture seems to have continued very generally with their descendants, as the following pages will exhibit.

All of these one hundred and more were born in the towns of Concord and Chelmsford, as those towns then were; or in Concord, Chelmsford, Westford, Tyngsboro, Acton, and Carlisle, as the boundaries of the towns now are.

PART II.

COMPRISING THE DESCENDANTS OF JOSHUA 4 (27).

This is one of the Westford branches. Joshua, who is at the head of it, lived there, and all his sons raised their families in that town. Of his grandchildren, nearly all removed; and the branch has now no representative there.

FOURTH GENERATION.

FIFTH GENERATION.

JOSEPH⁵ (673), b. Westford, Ms., July 6, 1713; m. Elizabeth Underwood May 21, 1735. Her father's family were as follows:

Joseph Underwood b. 1681; d. Jan. 19, 1761; m. Susannah Parker, who was b. 1689; d. Feb. 18, 1769; res. Westford. Children: Joseph, min.; John drowned while in the army; Timothy d. in Putney, Vt.; Phineas d. in Merrimac, N. H.; James d. in Litchfield; Thomas; Mary m. Col. Buckley; Elizabeth b. Feb. 2, 1714, m. Joseph Fletcher, d. Nov. 23, 1802; Ruth m. Joshua Reed; Susannah d. young; Ama m. Benjamin Spaulding; Bethiah m. Oliver Prescott.

At about the time of their marriage they rem. and settled in Dunstable, where he bought six hundred acres of land at about twelve cents an acre,—then an almost unbroken wilderness. Here he lived fifty years, subduing and cultivating the land, and was blest with a competence as the result of his industry. He was a leading man in the community, and a pillar in the church; a good citizen, and a devoted Christian. He d. July 17, 1784. All his nine children followed him to the grave,—eight of them with their companions.

The homes of Dea. Joseph and his sturdy sons, in close proximity, are interesting relics of by-gone days. About a mile and a half from the village of old Dunstable, on the Hollis road, we cross Jointgrass brook and ascend the hill beyond, and then leaving the old school-house on the left, we see, a few rods to the west, an old-fashioned two-story dwelling, with capacious barns. Here lived Thomas (684), the eldest son of Dea. Joseph, and reared his numerous family, of whom Francis, the youngest, still lives here. The house where Joseph (689), the third son of Dea. Joseph, settled and lived several years, stands a short distance north, and fronting the south, surrounded by five tall buttonwood trees. Still farther north, about an eighth of a mile, a tall buttonwood and four elms stand guardians of the ancient homestead where the father Joseph lived and died. His son Phineas, grandson Mark, and great grandson George W., have in turn owned the sacred spot, hallowed by thirty births and half as many deaths.

Looking from here to the west of north, distant about an eighth of a mile, stand two houses about a stone's throw The one with the tall buttonwoods was the residence of Jonathan (685), the second son of Dea. Joseph. other lived Jonathan's son Samuel (737). From Blanchard's hill may be seen the church spires of Pepperell, Hollis, and Londonderry.

The daughters m. and settled in the vicinity. It is related that the family gatherings were enormous for numbers, such as the present day of small families cannot produce. thanksgivings!

The following incidents, which are authentic, read strangely to one now living on the spot.

Joseph had gone to the nearest mill, which was in Westford, about eight miles distant, and had to remain away over night, his wife remaining at home alone. In the evening, she heard something like the scream of a child. Stepping to the door, she encountered the glaring eyes of a catamount perched in a tree. She fastened the door, and then, fearing the animal might gain access through the window, she crawled into a barrel and contrived to get its open end against the wall and there passed the night.

While Joseph was hoeing corn in the field one day, and his little daughter Susannah, who had been playing around him, had lain down on the greensward in the shade at the side of the field and gone to sleep, he saw a large black bear crossing the field and going directly toward the sleeping child. The gun was then always close at hand, and a well-directed shot saved the child.

On one occasion, the flock of sheep came rushing down Blanchard's hill with a bear in full pursuit. But Bruin, instead of feasting on the mutton he was after, furnished the table with his own steaks.

The mother was kind and tender-hearted toward her children, and when the boys were caught in mischievous pranks, she would whip them herself, and then report them to the father. She knew that her very gentle castigation would be an estoppel of any further punishment from the heavier hand of the father.

A correspondent says: "Dea. Joseph was a remarkable man, — kind, benevolent, always self-possessed; he seemed like the patriarchs of old. He continued to have re-unions of his family twice a year till they numbered over sixty." Children:

"He was the patron of President Webber, of Harvard University, whom he found a poor boy in his parish, but possessed of native genius. Mr. Fletcher prepared him for college, and assisted him in procuring an edu-The president ever acknowledged his obligations to his early instructor and friend."

His widow m. Rev. Christopher Paige, and d. July 9, 1821.

We have the following anecdote of Elijah's boyhood: When about twelve years of age, he was for some reason allowed, one Sunday morning, to remain at home from meeting. A neighbor had just set out in front of his house some young elm trees, and himself and family had gone to meeting. Little Elijah dug up the elms, and transplanted them to the front of his father's house, before the meeting was over. The neighbor, astonished to see his trees gone over to Mr. Fletcher's, would not, however, desecrate the sacred day by making any inquiries; but very early Monday morning, Elijah was called to account, the result of which was, that Mr. Fletcher supplied other trees for those taken away, and the purloined elms remained; and at this day spread their lofty branches, in vigorous old age, among the many beautiful elms of the beautiful town of Westford.

He laid the foundation of the present work more than one hundred years ago, and left a diagram and memoranda of facts which he had collected relating to the Fletcher history, and especially to the earliest settlers. Issue:

"In 1811, Isaac Fletcher, an educated, well-read lawyer, came to town. . . . After receiving his diploma, he taught in the academy at Chesterfield, N. H., and there formed an acquaintance with Miss Abigail Stone, his future He read law with Mr. Vose, of N. H., and Judge White, of Putney, Vt. Of an ardent temperament, ambitious, prompt, energetic, unremitting in his efforts for his clients, he soon attained an extensive and lucrative practice. In doing this, he overwrought both his bodily and mental powers, participating in almost every trial in the supreme and county courts of three counties, and being eight years in succession state attorney of Caledonia Co. Four times he was representative in the state legislature; once speaker of that body. He was twice elected representative in Congress, but his health failing him, be could not distinguish himself as in his profession. He was also adjutant-gen. in the governor's staff."

Williams, and during the latter part of the Mexican war, held a commission as commissary in the U. S. army; exercised for some time a command in Texas, on the border. He was distinguished no less for his kindness to those under his orders than for his gallantry in many a sharp fight on the frontier. As a lawyer, his reputation for a young man was high."

CALVIN (780), b. Feb. 4, 1798; m. Sarah Hill May 1, 1821, at Urbana, O., who d. 1859; m. 2d, Mrs. Keziah Price, nee Backhurst. [See frontispiece.]

The following is derived from a sketch prepared by WIL-LIAM B. Trask, Esq., and published in the "N. E. Genealogical Register."

Calvin was the eleventh of fifteen children, most of whom, it is remarkable, lived to receive an education and go out into the world. Under the teachings of an excellent father, and a mother of more than ordinary ability, he early learned those habits of industry and self-reliance which, coupled with upright principles, uniformly characterized his manhood-life. While performing all the duties exacted from a boy on a New-England farm, he very soon manifested a great desire for a classical education. This desire was stimulated by the concurring advice of his mother and the witnessed success of his brother Elijah, who had, a few years before, completed his college course. Depending on his own earnings for the means of obtaining an education, he set about preparing himself for college through the instrumentalities afforded him by brief periods of instruction in the academies of Randolph and Royalton, in Vermont. In the course of his studies pecuniary troubles interfered, his father having become financially embarrassed. The older sons and daughters had left their native State, and, at the request of Calvin, his father "gave him his time," and he went from home. made an effort at Boston to ship as a sailor before the mast, but did not succeed in the attempt. We next find him in Pennsylvania, where he engaged himself, for a short time, as a laborer in a brick-yard. To show that his literary tastes were not impaired by his new and humble employment, it may be mentioned that he always carried with him a small edition of Pope's poems, which he read at each moment of But his brick-making came shortly to an end. intelligence soon attracted the attention of a gentleman named Foot, by whom he was induced to go to the State of There he first taught school at Urbana, county of Champaign; was subsequently private tutor in the family of a Mr. Gwin, whose fine library gave him a capital opportunity for reading; and he finally studied law at Urbana with Hon. James Cooley, afterwards "U. S. Chargé d'Affaires" in Peru.

In 1819, he went to Richmond, Virginia, and was licensed to practise by the supreme court of the Old Dominion. At one time he thought of settling in Virginia, but even then his strong love of freedom and the rights of man made him renounce his intention, and caused him to return to Urbana, where he became the law partner of Mr. Cooley. Indianapolis was set apart for the capital of Indiana, by the legislature of that State, Jan. 6, 1821, and the same year Mr. Fletcher settled there with his family. He was the first lawyer in the city, and no one, certainly, was more successful. Poor at the time of his location, his business, carefully attended to, became lucrative. For several years he was prosecuting attorney. He took in, as a partner, Ovid Butler, Esq., and subsequently, Simon Yandes, Esq. At his death, he had become wealthy, both of his partners having previously retired, as had also Mr. Fletcher, from the practice of the law.

Says a contributor to the "Indiana Weekly Herald" of June 2d, 1866, "We had the gratification of hearing Mr. Fletcher argue one case, and but one, to a jury, that of J. B. Otey, who was tried in the United States court, in 1841, for robbing the mail. The case was prosecuted by districtattorney Cushing, of Madison, and Hon. John Petitt, of La-Associated with Mr. Fletcher in the defence, was Hon. Tilghman A. Howard. Mr. Fletcher's effort was able and successful. On making the city his home, Mr. Fletcher actively interested himself in its prosperity; he was a member of the first fire company organized in it, - the "Old Marion"; he won the confidence and respect of the people. In 1827, he was elected a State senator, in which office he was continued till 1832, when he abandoned politics, though a successful career was open to him in that path, had he In 1836, after the lamented death of chosen to follow it. Colonel Kinnaird, he replied to those soliciting him to become a candidate for congress, that he preferred to adhere to his profession and educate his children."

Mr. Fletcher was married to Sarah Hill, by Rev. Samuel Hill, May 1, 1821, in the county of Champaign, Ohio, about four miles from Urbana, the county-seat. She was born in the county of Fleming, Ky., to which State her parents removed from Virginia nearly a century ago, or about the time of the Daniel Boone immigration.

Mrs. Fletcher died in the autumn of 1854. On the 5th of November, 1855, he married Mrs. Keziah Price Lister, née Backhurst, who survives him.

We have the gratification of introducing a short autobiography of Mr. Fletcher. In a letter dated March 25. 1861, to Mr. John Ward Dean, then the corresponding secretary of the New England Hist. Gen. Society, he writes thus concerning himself: "At that period [1815], I had only had the advantages of two months each year at the school in the district where my father lived. For two years I labored for others, at wages a portion of the time, and the residue I spent at the academies of Randolph and Royalton in my native State. In 1817, I determined on a seaman's life, and in April of the same year went to Boston, a total stranger, and tried my best to obtain a berth on board an East-Indiaman, but failed. I then turned my face towards the country west of the Alleghanies. In two months I worked my way, mostly on foot, to the western part of Ohio and stopped at Urbana, then the frontier settlement of the northwestern part of that State. I knew not an individual in the State — had no letter of introduction. obtained labor as a hired hand for a short time, and then a school. In the fall of 1817, I obtained a situation in the law office of the honorable James Cooley, a gentleman of talents and fine education; one of a large class which graduated at Yale, under Dr. Dwight. He was sent to Peru under John Quincy Adams's administration, and died there. In the fall of 1820, I was admitted to the bar, and became the law partner of my worthy friend and patron, Mr. Cooley. In the summer of 1821, the Delaware Indians left the central part of Indiana, then a total wilderness, and the new State selected and laid off Indianapolis as its future capital, but did not make it such for four or five years thereafter. married, and, on my request, my worthy partner permitted me to leave him to take up my residence at the place designated as the seat of government of Indiana. In September of that year (1821), I left Urbana with a wagon, entered the wilderness, and after travelling fourteen days and camping out the same number of nights, reached Indianapolis, where there were a few newly-erected cabins. No counties had been laid off in the newly-acquired territory, but in a few years civil divisions were made. I commenced the practice of law, and for about twenty-two years travelled over, twice annually, nearly one-third of the northwestern part of the State, at first without roads, bridges, or ferries. In 1825, I was appointed states-attorney for the fifth judicial circuit, embracing some twelve or fifteen counties. This office I held about one year, when I was elected to the State senate: served seven years, resigned, and gave up official positions. as I then supposed, for life. But in 1834, I was appointed by the legislature one of four to organize a State bank, and to act as sinking-fund commissioner. I held this place also seven years. From 1843 till 1859, I acted as president of the branch of the State bank at Indianapolis, until the charter expired. During the forty years I have resided in Indiana, I have devoted much of my time to agriculture, and societies for its promotion, and served seven years as trustee of our city schools. I have been favored with a large family, nine sons and two daughters. Three of the former have taken a regular course, and graduated at Brown University, Providence, R. I., and two a partial course at the same insti-I have written no books, but have assisted in compiling a law book. I have kept a journal of daily events, confined mainly to my own routine of business."

Mr. Fletcher died in Indianapolis, May 26, 1866, aged sixty-eight. His death was occasioned by a fall from his horse a few weeks previous.

A meeting of the bankers was held in that eity on the 28th, and a committee, consisting of J. C. S. Harrison, David Snyder, and Mr. Mansur, was appointed, who reported resolutions, which were adopted,—among them the following:

"That in the career of Mr. Fletcher are presented very striking evidences of what great and good things may be accomplished under our free institutions by sound sense and unfailing energy, no matter how unpromising the circumstances of their possessor may be at his outset in life.

"That his success in business is the history of a life of hopeful labor, pure integrity, genial benevolence, steady caution, and active usefulness; in which great results have been attained, not by brilliant strokes of adventure, or any dependence upon fortune, but by those plainer and less obtrusive methods, which are within the reach of the great majority of men, and affords a lesson of hope and warning,—hope to the upright, diligent, and frugal; warning to the reckless and idle who wait upon fortune."

Mr. Fletcher was a strong man, physically, morally, and intellectually. In the early stages of his pioneer life he had to withstand to the face, and at times with bodily force resist, those who attempted to deprive him of his rights. There were no courts there, at first, in the infant settlement, to take cognizance of breaches of the peace and of ill behavior; but each man had to be, as it were, "a law unto himself,"—his own judge and executor. He was equal to the emergency, and when the trial of strength came could do justice to himself. In the same spirit he stood ready also to befriend those who might otherwise have been injured.

He was a great lover of nature. He took much interest in the study of ornithology, and made himself familiar with the habits of birds, their instincts and characteristics. The domestic animals found in him a sympathizing friend. He was kind to them,—ever ready to learn in regard to their particular dispositions and qualities, using such knowledge, when obtained, to their advantage.

He was fond of the science of astronomy, and in fact of almost everything that was elevating and ennobling. In his well-selected library of general literature, in addition to law books, might be seen, in close proximity, local histories, periodicals, the works of Audubon, school journals, and miscellaneous works. He availed himself of the opportunities afforded him, as one of the pioneers, and a continued resident of Indianapolis, to collect and preserve local newspapers, books, and magazines. At his death these accumulated volumes of western literature were deposited in one of the institutions of the city.

He was a man of method. Usually he would rise at four o'clock in the morning, and attend to his correspondence till breakfast; then be off to give directions in regard to his farm of sixteen hundred acres, situated about two miles from his residence. On his return he would engage in his duties at the bank, or other employments, always on the move, ever active, ever accomplishing important results.

From a communication in the "Indiana Weekly State Gazette" of June 6, 1866, the following is taken:

"The multitudes, in this community and in the West, who have for many years felt it to be their highest honor to be known as the friends of Calvin Fletcher, will only need to be assured by his early associates that the bright and mature development of his character is only what might have been expected in the ripened shock in the ear, from its promise in the grain-seed.

"When a young lawyer, and with his gentle wife from Ohio, in the first week of October of 1821, he unloaded his wagon of householdings and books at a cabin he had purchased, standing in the centre of the future Washington street, near the State-house, in this city, how little was anticipated by the passing settlers the influence the new-comer would exert on the future of our prospective city and the region surrounding!

"In one leading trait, his course was marked and earnest. No poor man ever applied to Calvin Fletcher, in his need, either for counsel or assistance, and was sent empty away; and when the friends of the colored man, fleeing from bondage, were few and unpopular in this community, his sympathy and assistance was never withheld."

The Rev. Edmund Squire, of Dorchester, Mass., in a letter to Mr. Trask, says:

"He was a man of courage. When to be a friend of the slave was not only unfashionable but dangerous, he, at the risk of his life, forced his way into a so-called court of justice, where a mob thirsted for a slave's blood, and fastening his eye on the judge, by a few strong words of truth, changed the coming doom, and gave the man his life.

"Lastly, he was like all men of power in his age, exceedingly rapid in thought and action; before others had begun the argument he had concluded it, and was off. I think I never saw him sit entirely still; repose was not his dominant characteristic; he was like a bird on the bough. Calvin Fletcher was not a perfect, but he was a very remarkable man, one of the fathers of his city and of the West. Such another man I have never seen, and never expect to see again."

The following is from the funeral discourse delivered by his pastor, Rev. A. S. Kinman:

"Early in the history of his life, he washed his hands from the guilt of that sum of national villainies, American slavery. He was an abolitionist when it cost something to be one. He once said to one of his sons, 'When I am in the court house engaged in an important suit, if the governor of the State should send in word that he wished to speak with me, I would reply that I could not go; but if a Quaker should touch me on the shoulder and say, 'A colored man is out here in distress and fear,' I would leave the court-house in a minute to see the man; for I feel that I would have to account at that last day when He shall ask me if 'I have visited the sick and in prison or bondage, and fed the poor.' The great of this world can take care of themselves, but God has made us stewards for the downtrodden, and we must account to him."

These old anti-slavery men are now being gathered to their fathers, but the nation owes them a debt of gratitude never yet paid. Thank God, that Mr. Fletcher lived to see the bond go free. Like Simeon of old, he and his co-laborers are now permitted to say for themselves, "Let thy servants depart in peace, for our eyes have beheld thy salvation." But I point you to him as a Christian. If the sentiment, "By their fruits ye shall know them," be the criterion of Christian character, then I would point you to every Protestant church of this city, and nearly all of this country; I would point you to the school-houses and seminaries; I would point you to our houses of charity and asylums; I would point you to hundreds of ministers' wives and hungry children; I would point you to all the benevolent societies for the poor, and the maimed and oppressed; sixteen persons that he educated during his life out of his own funds, and say, Calvin Fletcher has stock in them all; and thus "he being dead yet speaketh." No man could love and respect the Bible and the minister more than he. He was a constant student of the one, and hearer of the other. Among the very last things he said, was to speak of his love and respect for his pastor, and the last rational recognition was to recognize the Bible under the most touching circumstances. eldest and youngest son had arisen to take their turn in watching with him. He had been unconscious for many hours. His oldest son had brought in the large family Bible for personal use, and while sitting by his side he opened his eyes, and recognizing the Book of God, he nodded his head and smiled in the most grateful and pleasing manner.

Permit me to quote from his private journal some facts relating to his inner life of religion.

"January 1, 1829. — For two or three months past, I have felt strongly impressed with the great importance of religion, and the vanity and uncertainty of the things of this world. And further, feeling I am approaching what is certainly the meridian of life (thirty-five), I have been led to inquire into the truth of the Scriptures in relation to that intelligent, immortal part called the soul, in order to satisfy myself on this subject, on which at first I had some doubts. Yes, I even found myself to be almost an infidel. I applied to a number of my friends who had professed religion (I feel thankful that I had such friends, for they have been a consolation and light which I little expected), and found, on inquiry, they were enjoying treasures of which I was entirely ignorant. I attended several class-meetings of the Methodists, in which I found further evidence of the good things which religious and pious people enjoy. On Tuesday night before New Year, I resolved to go forward at the watch-night meeting of the Methodists. It would take volumes to tell the doubts I had in coming to a conclusion on this great undertaking. had for a long time clung to the world, and my affections were strongly rooted there. I was a representative of a district in the senate, a lawyer, the legislature was in session, &c., &c., which all tended to frighten me. However, I tremblingly advanced this morning and gave my hand, and there, openly to the world, and more strongly confessed on my part, the covenant I had made to serve God, as earnestly as in me lay. Rev. Mr. Wiley and Edwin Ray, a local preacher of Madison, Ind., preached two sermons, beginning at nine o'clock of the old year, and preached till twelve, when Mr. Armstrong, our local preacher, gave an exhortation and opened the door to receive members, and I went Sensible am I now that I was too unworthy to make such a profession. I returnd home, and went to bed at two A. M., and rose about one half hour before sunrise. I determined to set my house in better order than before. Brother James Hill, also a member of the Methodist church, performed a duty which I had always neglected — to have family prayer in my house. In the evening I went to see my friend James M. Ray. He was just going to the Presbyterian meeting-house, to attend a Sunday school. of the members came. He went in. All was dark. very affectionately expressed his joy that I had on the new year commenced the service of the Lord. We reviewed our whole life, and covenanted with each other to watch, pray for, and admonish each other; to suppress all heart-burnings in and against the respective churches to which we belonged. As a friend well tried, I have found none better than Mr. Ray, and Mr. James Blake, our absent friend, who both have within the past year become members of the Presbyterian church, the latter of whom, in his conversation after I had revealed my first convictions to him, gave me good counsel and consolation and strength in the steps I was desirous to While at the meeting-house my friend Ray, at my request, made a most pathetic and feeling prayer, which, to me, was as the refreshing dews to the parched earth. parted, pledging to each other to be friends, not only in the world, but in the cause of Christ.

"January 3. — This evening I have made some very slight examination of myself, in relation to my fitness to go forward on to-morrow and partake in the solemn ordinances of the Lord's Supper. In this, I feel greatly and awfully deficient and doubtful.

"Sunday, January 4, 1829. — On this day, for the first time, I went forward and partook of the Lord's Supper. I had many doubts and many difficulties in coming to a conclusion as to my fitness in so important a step. I felt truly unworthy, yet from prayer, I satisfied myself that it was my duty to advance; that I was unworthy to be called his follower, until I could fully confess Jesus Christ before men."

"February 4, 1865.—My birthday. I am sixty-seven years old. I have not been indifferent and without concern in relation to the better life beyond this present state. This has been a subject before me night and day. I feel that I am fast approaching the end of this world's labors. I have no labor so great and so important as that of a sure preparation to the entrance on another state of existence. My desire is to be more studious, more devoted and prayerful. I ask God daily, and continually, to give me his grace and pardon; to send his holy spirit to enlighten and instruct me in this vital preparation for a better life. I enter on another year, feeling its importance more sensibly than ever before. I have comfortable seasons mingled with times of depression and sense of great unworthiness.

"Sunday, February 4th, 1866. — Sixty-eight years old. Born on Sunday — a happy day to me. What makes this day more dear to me is that I was born on it. May God sanctify this holy day — the Sabbath — to my use and salvation. It has always been a dear and blessed day to me. May God strengthen and go with me as he permits me to walk into a new year of my life, perhaps the last. May I live in readiness to meet his last call on earth with lamp trimmed and ready to enter into the morning feast. He has been present thus far to sustain me, and, like a kind father, forgiving and merciful. May I have the spirit with me to teach and instruct me, that old age will not be marked with mental imbecility, impatience, and want of faith, but may I be constantly in the spirit, in love and in union with Christ."

This was the last entry in his journal, the closing paragraph of a great and good man's life.

ASA⁸ (1387), b. Dec. 24, 1820; m. June 10, 1856, Mrs. E. W. Willard, nee Houghton, in Winchester, Ms. Carpenter and lumber dealer.

In the war of the Rebellion, he volunteered Aug. 2, 1862, for three years, or during the war. He was attached to the Andrews Sharp-shooters, which company he joined Sept. 13, 1856, at Frederic City. The next day, Sept. 14, he went into the battle at Antietam, and at about eleven A. M. a ball passed through his right lung; and then, while lying upon the field, he was struck on the arm by a fragment of a shell. In this condition he was taken prisoner. His wounds, though considered fatal, were dressed by a surgeon; but in about forty-eight hours, being unable to march, he was abandoned with other wounded men of both armies, and the ground on which they lay was regained by the Union troops. After remaining on the battle-ground eight days, during which time he received some care, he was rem. to Frederic City, and thence to Philadelphia. Then at the regular hospital at Germantown, he received the best of care and treatment, so that October 30, he was discharged and returned home.

HENRY⁶ (1651),* b. in Westford, Ms., Aug. 17, 1751; he was m. Nov. 30, 1773, to Deborah, dau. of Aaron and Dorothy (Fletcher) Parker, of the same town. Immediately after his marriage, he settled in New Ipswich, N. H. In the history of that town, his name appears on the list of tax-payers for 1774, with a tax of 9s. 3d.; whole town-tax, 106l. 16s. On the map accompanying that history, his name appears as original proprietor of town lots Nos. 138 and 152, both on the north side of Barrett's Mountain.

In 1777, he joined a company of volunteers, which included Nathaniel Pratt, father of the wife of Reuben (1677), and marched to "Old Ti," as it was generally expressed, to intercept Gen. Burgoyne. Neither of them was in any battle or skirmish, though at one time, just previous to the surrender, they were stationed where, from the movements of the troops, they "expected every moment to see the bullets fly." On their way to the seat of war, they passed through Windsor County, Vermont, then a wilderness, in which they subsequently settled, and where they both died.

Henry's first three children were born in New Ipswich. In 1778, he rem. to Carlisle [then Acton], where two more of his children were b., both of whom d. young. Then he rem. to a farm known as "Blood's place," in Westford, where Reuben was born. Soon afterwards he went on to his father's homestead on Stony Brook. After living in his father's house about seven years, and an absence from New Ipswich of some twelve, he returned to that town in 1790. During the twelve years of his residence in Massachusetts, the law of the State by which Congregational worship was supported, in some cases at least, by a tax on the person and property of all the inhabitants, was warmly discussed, and most violently opposed, especially by the Baptist denomination, to which he belonged. Conscientiously refusing to pay one of these "minister taxes," he was committed to Concord jail, though it is believed he remained only one night, when the tax was paid by friends.

On his return to New Ipswich, in 1790, there remained of his old home land enough, to be sure, but only land. The house had been sold and removed, and the farm had been "improved" only as pasturage.

^{*} The account of Henry and his descendants was prepared by Stilman (1723), who has otherwise assisted in the preparation and publication of this work.

To appreciate the difficulties and hardships of the next ten years of his life, it is not enough to remember that there was neither house nor barn, fences nor fields on his land, and that he had a large family to support; but we must recall the condition of our country at that time. The army of the Revolution had been disbanded about seven years. It was only three years after "Shay's Insurrection." That very year (1790) Rhode Island gave her reluctant assent to our present Constitution. Confidence in government, confidence in each other, even, was wanting. Business was dead. No commerce, no manufacturing, no enterprise of any kind. British goods, admitted without a protective tariff, had drained off what specie the Revolution left. Continental money was worthless. Taxes were high, wages low, and employment difficult to be found at any price. Iron and salt could hardly be had. Clothing was all home-made; herbs were used for tea; molasses was made of maple, boiled eider, and cornstalks; sections of large hard-wood logs, sawed off some foot thick, with holes made in the centre, were used for eart-wheels. The population of Boston was only 18,038. Lowell was a pine plain, and factory corporations unknown.

During the twelve years (1778-90) that he carried on his father's farm in Westford, there was no market nearer than Boston, over twenty miles distant; and produce was often carried to Salem, and even to Marblehead, with a team of two oxen and one horse; but in going to either place, it was not customary to "put up" at a tavern while from home. When he carried corn, the time of arrival at the mill at Charlestown, where it was ground, was regulated by the night tide, at the ebb of which the sleepy miller was hurried up to grind the grist that it might be peddled out early in the morning. So great have been the changes in the wealth of the country and in the habits of the people, within the last century, that the present generation can scarcely form an idea of the poverty of the whole country at that time, or of the difficulty that people generally found in obtaining money to pay taxes or debts. It is not strange, therefore, notwithstanding all his hard labor and rigid economy, that he incurred debts in erecting buildings, etc., on his land in New Ipswich, which finally obliged him to sell out at a low price.

In the year 1800, he removed to Plymouth, Windsor Co., Vermont. Here he built a saw and grist mill on a lot of wild land, and in a section where, at that time, "the deer played and the wolves howled." After building the saw-mill, he commenced the clearing-up of the farm on which he passed the 'ast years of his life, striking the first blow on his fiftieth birthday. "My neighbors," he used to remark, "called me an old fool for planting an orchard on land cleared by my own hands after I was fifty years of age." He lived, however, to see that orchard in its prime, and to enjoy its fruit for many years. Here he erected good buildings, and found himself in his old ag in possession of a productive farm and the means of a comfortable support. Wife d. May 4, 1826; he d. Apr. 17, 1829, ac. 75. Issue:

WILLIAM 7 (1673), b. in New Ipswich, N. H., Mar. 31, 1776. Settled in Plymouth, Vt., about 1798. In company with his brother Aaron, he purchased a tract of land in the northeast corner of that township, at one dollar and seventeen cents per acre. They commenced chopping down the trees in 1799. After felling about eight acres, they found themselves out of provisions and out of money. They went to Rutland and worked two months in the best of the season at twelve dollars per month, payable in provisions,—a considerable part of which, however, was lost by the failure of their employer, one Williams. This partnership was dissolved after a continuance of some three years. William m. Sally, dau. of Thomas Davis, of Reading, Vt., June 18, 1801. Being among the first settlers of the neighborhood, he shared their hardships and privations. He had to "back" hav from the south part of the town, some five miles, and over a very hilly road, to fodder the oxen that harrowed in his first field of grain. Here he cleared up a farm, erected good buildings, — his being the first, and for many years the only, two-story house in the neighborhood, — and here he brought up a large family. This section is mountainous, and the population so sparse that it has ever been difficult to maintain public religious services; but he always did what he could for the support of such services, and for the proper observance of the Sabbath. As early as 1818 or 1819, he, with others, established a Sunday school, which met in the school-house of the district. His oldest son having purchased 'ine homestead, he went, in 1837, to Canaan, Vt., where his last years were passed with his sons William and Franklin, who owned a good farm in that town. Here he was appointed justice of the peace, and after a residence of about ten years, d. Nov. 22, 1847. His wife d. Oct. 1850, ac. 75 yrs. Issue:

AARON⁷ (1674), b. in New Ipswich, N. H., Nov. 18, 1777. Commenced an apprenticeship at blacksmithing in Boylston, Ms., at the age of sixteen, where he worked two winter seasons; when, at the age of eighteen, he went with his employer to Nelson, N. H., then mostly a wilderness, and where wolves disturbed them at night-time.

In the summer of 1799 he commenced work on land owned by himself and his brother William, in Plymouth, Vt., and on which he labored more or less till 1802, when he bargained for a blacksmith shop in Chelmsford, Mass., which, however, he did not occupy immediately. In 1805 he was settled in business in Chelmsford, and was married to Miss Sarah Neef, of Carlisle, in 1806. Two children were born to them in Chelmsford, one of whom was run over by a loaded team, and instantly killed. After living five years in Chelmsford, he removed to Carlisle village, April, 1811. In 1838, he sold his house and shop in the village, and removed some two miles to the farm on which his father lived from 1778 to 1782. Here he died Feb. 9th, 1867. Issue:

ADOLPHUS ⁷ (1810), b. in Croydon, N. H., Sept. 3, 1796; m. Sarah Stow; m. 2d, Caroline E. Brooks. Editor in Jamestown, N. Y.; d. 1866.

The following was written by Judge Abner Hazeltine:

"Mr. Adolphus Fletcher came to Jamestown when it was a small village, a mere hamlet, situated in an obscure corner, remote from any thoroughfare, and scarcely known abroad, except to a few on the waters below us who were engaged in the lumber trade. Mr. Fletcher and his paper were among the instrumentalities for bringing this secluded section into notice, and if the remarks called forth by the first number of the 'Jamestown Journal,' from the editor of other papers to whom it was sent with the usual request, 'Please Exchange,' could now be collected, they would be a source of much amusement. The undertaking was evidently regarded as Quixotic by those who had heard of Jamestown, if not a hoax. But the work then commenced has completed more than fifty yearly volumes.

"The boyhood of Mr. Fletcher was passed on his father's farm, with occasional attendance on the schools which were then well sustained in the Old Bay State. His apprenticship was passed in the office of the 'Massachusetts Spy,' which was established at Worcester, by Mr. Thomas, prior to the American revolution. Soon after becoming of age, he married, May 13, 1818, Miss Sarah Stow, a native of Worcester, and who had been his neighbor and associate from childhood.

"Prior to his marriage, an elder brother and sister had settled in Chatauque county, N. Y., and had purchased from the first occupant, Reuben Slayton, Esq., the site of the present village of Ashville. His father's family having concluded about that time to follow their elder children to their new home, he was induced to accompany them. A friend who accompanied him informs the writer, that the two families started from Worcester with a span of horses and two pairs of oxen, and were three weeks on the way, arriving at what was then known as Goose Creek, or Slayton's Mills, in June, 1818.

"During his residence at Ashville, he was to some extent engaged in farming. He also had a small store in connection with the late Dr. Deming, of Westfield, and kept a tavern. He was thus employed, when, at the solicitation of friends at Jamestown, who knew something of his early pursuits, he resolved to resume his original occupation. He removed to Jamestown in the summer of 1824, and with a small stock of type, purchased mostly on credit, and a press constructed on the spot, under his own supervision, he soon commenced the 'Jamestown Journal,' doing a large share of the work with his own hands. For several years, no man in Jamestown worked harder or more hours than he.

"One great object in getting up the paper was to promote the interests of southern Chautauqua, which it was supposed had suffered for want of an organ, and this, instead of party politics, was intended to be its leading characteristic. Fletcher, although a man of decided opinions, adhered to this platform strictly, taking no part in the controversies between the Clintonians and Bucktails, as the leading political parties in the State were then denominated. position did not long suit the times. The abduction of Morgan, and the presidential contest between Jackson and Adams, were elements of party strife too strong to admit of neutrality; and a paper for the avowed object of aiding the election of Gen. Jackson was started in opposition to the This division of support not only lessened his income, but imposed new labors and responsibilities on Mr. Fletcher. His paper, as a matter of course, came out on the other side, and from that time became decidedly political. It soon acquired a patronage superior to that it had lost, and became a remunerative establishment. After remaining at its head about twenty years, he sold out to his son, from whom it soon passed into other hands.

"After the death of his first wife, Jan. 6, 1836, and just thirty years before his death, he married Miss Caroline E. Brooks, of Westminster, Ms. Early in life he became a member of the Cong. church, of which he was a consistent member until his death. He will long be remembered as a good citizen, and an upright and exemplary man." Issue:

ASAPH ⁵ (1886), b. in Westford, Ms., June 28, 1746. The following sketch, written by his son Richard (1912).

is taken from Benedict's History of the Baptists:

"He was baptized, and united with the Baptist church in Leicester, Mass., 15th of May, 1768, being then almost twenty-two years of age. From that day to the day of his death, he continued an active and devoted Christian, being a period of more than seventy years. At about the age of twenty-two, he established himself as a physician in his native town of Westford, and pursued this profession with signal usefulness and success till the infirmities of great age made it necessary for him to retire from active life.

Beside many other public offices which he held while he remained in Massachusetts, he was a member of the convention which formed the constitution of that Commonwealth, in 1780. In that convention he struggled hard to ingraft into the constitution the principle, that no man should be compelled by law to pay taxes for the support of preaching, but that all such contributions should be voluntary, and according to the dietates of conscience. He afterwards successfully advocated, through the press, and maintained this principle of religious liberty, in the State of Vermont. Though he failed to effect the object for which he contended in the convention, yet he lived to see the principle which he maintained earried out in the constitution and laws of Mas-On the 3d day of October, 1776, he was married to Sally Green, daughter of Jonathan Green, of Chelsea, Mass. In Feb. 1787, he removed to Cavendish, Vt., where he continued to reside till his death. time of his removal to Vermont, that State was not a member of the Union, and he was a member of the convention which applied to congress for admission. He was shortly after a member of a convention to revise the constitution of that State. He was frequently a member of the legislature. for some years one of the judges of the county court, for several years a member of the council, and was one of the electors of president and vice-president when Mr. Monroe was first elected. He was for a time president of the medical society of his county, and delivered lectures before that body. He held many other offices, not important to mention, but which manifested the respect in which he was held, and the confidence reposed in him. He died peacefully, surrounded by a numerous company of affectionate and devoted children and grandchildren, on the 5th of January, 1839, aged 92 years. His wife, with whom he had lived most happily for sixty years, and who still lives in the grateful and affectionate remembrance of her children and grandchildren, had deceased a few years before his own death.

He was at all times, in public and in private life, an humble and devoted Christian. His advantages for an education in early life were very small, and he was almost wholly a self-taught man. Still he made himself quite a respectable English scholar, and acquired, without the aid of any teacher, a considerable knowledge of the Latin and Greek languages. He was thoughtful and serious, and possessed habits of patient and persevering investigation. He had a sound and well-balanced mind, and uncommon calmness and equanimity of temper. He cherished an unwavering faith in an overruling Providence, which sustained him in the midst of trials, and in the darkest hour. He was retiring and unobtrusive, without vanity or love of display. His great and constant purpose was to fill up life with duty. He lived long and lived well."

Richard Fletcher

RICHARD ⁶ (1912)* was b. in Cavendish, Vt., Jan. 8, 1778, and his boyhood was passed in his native town, to which he always evinced great attachment, although he never resided there again after entering Dartmouth College, at the age of fourteen. He was graduated in 1806, receiving the highest honors. He then went to Salisbury, N. II., and took charge of an academy school, commencing at the same time the reading of law with Daniel Wobster, who then lived there, and who m. 1808, Grace Fletcher (764). It is related that at the end of his professional studies, the young lawyer found himself in debt to Mr. Webster for tuition, and gave his promissory note to the amount of five hundred dollars, understanding that sufficient time should be allowed for earning it in his practice. Mr. Webster, however, under some financial pressure, sold the note, and its payment was shortly demanded. Mr. Fletcher thereupon mounted on horseback, rode to Cavendish, Vt., where his father and other friends raised the requisite amount, and then with the hard cash in saddle-bags, he rode back to his creditor. Continuing in Salisbury, he acquired a good practice, and in 1819 rem. to Boston, with the capital of an excellent professional reputation and a few thousand dollars in money. Here he shortly took rank with the very first of legal advocates. We quote from a notice that appeared soon after his death, which is, no doubt, just: "While in practice before the courts, his presence ever commanded the utmost respect. Of good form, of handsome and expressive features, and of most gentlemanly and pleasing address, coupled with his great learning and untiring industry, it is not strange that he should have succeeded at the bar and on the bench." Another notice of him says: "He was an orator of great power, fluent and elegant in diction, bright and sparkling in thought, keen and quick in repartee." His care not to be engaged in unworthy causes was noted. A lady called one day at his office, when the writer was present, and made a long statement of a lawsuit in which she desired to engage his services, and for which she said she was prepared to pay well. After hearing her patiently, "Madam," said he, "you would lose that suit, and had ought to lose it; I cannot undertake it."

^{*} The author has solicited, without success, a suitable sketch of one of the best and noblest of our family, and is finally compelled, within a few hours' time, to make the record for these pages.

In political life, he found little that suited his tastes. He was a member of the Mass. legislature, and, in 1837, was elected representative in Congress. He again received the nomination of the Whig party, which was, at that time, in that district, equivalent to a re-election. This he declined, as he preferred to devote himself to his profession, and especially because life in Congress was so uncongenial to him. In 1848, he was appointed judge of the supreme court of Mass., and retired from the bench in 1853. The degree of LL.D. was conferred by both Harvard and Dartmouth.

He made a public profession of religion, and united with the Federal Street Baptist Church, under the pastoral care of Rev. Howard Malcom. He became superintendent of the Sunday school, and at one time was chosen deacon. Concerning this last it was related:

"On being informed of the selection, Mr. Fletcher appeared before the society, and, in one of his happiest moods, addressed them. He thanked them for the kindness and confidence they had shown him, and then proceeded to give them a description of the character and qualifications which Speaking thus in his judgment were requisite for the office. at length upon the subject of religion and the importance of personal piety and sincere devotion to God and the cause of the Redeemer, and having wrought up the attention of his hearers to a great interest, he closed by assuring them that he did not possess, nor claim to possess, then and there, that degree of holiness which the candidate should bring to the office. The calls of business, the cares of his profession, and the worldliness of his life that had too much engrossed his attention, rendered it improper for him, however much he appreciated the honor, to accept the offer; and besides, said the speaker, lowering the tones of his voice, and throwing into his handsome face all the interest and emotion which memory and the occasion called up, "I am not worthy; there is one insurmountable barrier standing between me and the position named. Among all the qualifications which I have alluded to, that this officer of the church should possess, there is one which I have not named, the injunction of Holy Writ, through the apostle, is that the deacon 'should be the husband of one wife.' I have none. I cannot accept the office."

His religion was not so much of the aggressive kind, nor did he often urge his views upon others; but it pervaded his entire character, and shone out in all his actions. Its rich fruits were his kind and loving disposition, with almost the tenderness of a child; the firmness for the right, which no force could bend and no money could bribe; the ever-flowing fountain of benevolence that bestowed his wealth to the help of many. He was devotional; private and public worship he delighted in. When taken from his active duties, and confined to his bed by sickness, he had read to him, not the newspapers and books of the day, but Doddridge and Baxter. A scrap from his diary is illustrative:

"Jan. 15, 1857. — Received through the post-office to-day a very remarkable letter, in which the writer says that more than forty years ago he abstracted twenty-five cents from my pocket. He encloses me a dollar and twenty-four cents for the money so taken, the interest evidently having been computed at compound interest to make this sum. Speaking of the act, the writer says: 'It has harrowed up my soul. had I thought that God looked on the heart! The expresses great compunction, and begs me to forgive him and pray for him, that he may be forgiven of God. . . . I sincerely and heartily forgive the person, whoever he may be, and I humbly and earnestly pray God to forgive him for Christ's sake, as he seems to be heartily contrite and penitent. How many sins I have committed in my life for which I need the forgiveness of my fellow men and of my Heavenly Father! 'Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us.' What a proof is here of the power of conscience! Without the pardoning mercy of God through Jesus Christ, what may be the tortures of a guilty conscience in the world to come!"

He never married. His attachment to his relatives was remarkable. Tens of thousands of dollars he bestowed upon them while he lived. His nephews and nieces he seemed to love as if they were his children. His benefactions were widely spread. The worthy young man who needed a lift to get through college, found in him a friend, and charitable societies reckoned surely upon his aid. His will, after providing for his relatives, gives to Dartmouth College the residue. A passage in that will is of interest:

"In view of the numerous and powerful influences, constantly active in drawing professed Christians into fatal conformity to the world, both in spirit and practice; in view, also, of the lamentable and amazing fact, that Christianity exerts so little practical influence, even in countries nominally Christian, it has seemed to me that some good might be done by making permanent provision for obtaining and publishing, once in two years, a prize essay, setting forth truths and reasoning calculated to counteract such worldly influences, and impressing on the minds of all Christians a solemn sense of their duty to exhibit in their godly lives and conversation the beneficent effects of the religion they profess, and thus increase the efficiency of Christianity in Christian countries, and recommend its acceptance to the heathen nations of the world." For this purpose, he provides ten thousand dollars.

At the age of eighty-one, he d. June 21, 1869. His remains repose at Mount Auburn; and over them we inquire,—where are the young men of this generation to fill the places of those gone before?

RYLAND⁶ (1916), b. in Cavendish, Vt., Feb. 18, 1799; m. Mary Ann May, June 11, 1829.

He labored in early life upon his father's farm, receiving such education as the district school afforded in those days. Commencing at the age of seventeen, he taught school during the winter months for five years. At his first appearance for parade in the militia, he was chosen a sergeant, and afterwards held nearly every post to that of brigadier-general. He attended for a short time the military school in Norwich, Vt.

He was one of the earliest and most efficient laborers in the temperance cause. He addressed meetings in various parts of the State, and was president of the State temperance society. At the time he was colonel of a militia regiment, he called the officers together and procured a vote to abolish the custom of "treating" on parade days. then to encounter bitter opposition and abuse; but he has lived to see a law prohibiting the sale of the destructive poison effectually enforced in his State, and never likely be repealed.

In 1837, he took up the antislavery cause, and was its untiring champion, until Abraham Lincoln proclaimed that slavery was no more.

He was elected in 1854 lieut.-gov., and in 1856, governor of the State of Vermont, and held the latter office two years. He was elector of pres. and vice-pres. of the U.S. in 1864, and was delegate to two national conventions for the nomination of pres. and vice-pres. of the U.S.

A member of the Bapt. church, he has taken great interest in the moral and religious improvement of the people, especially by the promotion of Sunday schools.

He has cultivated, almost during his life, the farm where his father settled, and he now lives in the old mansion which his father built on Black River, a little below Proctorsville.

As a speaker, his manner is pleasing and persuasive, though his voice is not very full or clear. His style is logical, and full of illustration, without any apparent effort for effect. Children:

FIFTH GENERATION.

TIMOTHY 5 (2294), b. Nov. 2, 1728. He lived in a part of Concord, since set off to form the town of Acton. He was a lame man and in poor circumstances. We have not the name of his first wife, by whom he had five children. He m. 2d, Sarah Brewer, by whom he had nine children. She was a woman of remarkable energy and fortitude. He died of consumption in 1779, after a long sickness, leaving his large family almost destitute. This was during the dark days of the Revolution. Then the widow struggled to get bread for her children. By night and day she labored; she made garments of the skins of moose, goats, and other animals; and at the same time she had to constantly watch and tend her son Daniel, who was a helpless invalid with white swellings. After all, she was obliged to have help from the town. But the town was poor, and so they took from her the two boys who might at least have lightened her labors, and put them out to trades. Her step-sons had gone to the army; and so she struggled on. Afterwards she m. Thomas Willard, after whose decease she lived with her children, and d. at the house of her son Timothy. The children were all b. in Concord, five of whom d. young, and their names are not known.

He was but a mere child when he was bound out to a farmer to serve during his minority, and he faithfully served out his whole time. The following is his own account, written when over eighty years of age, of a journey to New York city in 1792:

"At the age of twenty-three, I set out to find my longabsent brother Daniel. On foot and alone, at the rate of fifty miles a day, I travelled until I arrived at Bridgeport, Ct., where for the first time I found myself on board a sailing craft. Arriving at Hellgate, the old sea captains, on learning that there was a raw Yankee on board, were disposed to have some sport; but there being on board a number of families moving to New York on the first day of May, no action took place."

In 1803, he went to Lincolnville, Me., and taught school, and the same year m. Mary L. Brown, of that place. Here he bought a farm and lived more than sixty years, and d. He served in the Revolution, first as fifer in Capt. Parr's company, in Col. Nathan Hale's regiment. He was at Ticonderoga on the approach of the British under Burgoyne, and retreated to Hubbardtown, Vt., and in the battle at that place, was wounded and taken prisoner. In about three weeks, he managed to escape from the British, and, after great hardships, reached home. Recovering from his wounds, he returned to the army and served through his three years' enlistment. He was, in 1779, under Gen. Sullivan, in his campaign against the Indians in Genessee Co., N.Y.

He received a common school education, and at the age of fourteen, was put under Mr. Samuel Comings, whose dau. he afterwards m., and whose mills he purchased. He was engaged for some years in trunk making. He was an exemplary member of the Baptist church, and was noted for his industry and his strict integrity. He d. May 8, 1831, and was buried in the cemetery, in the southerly part of New Ipswich, where a plain gravestone marks the spot.

He wrote a narrative of his adventures, of which two editions were published while he lived, and which has lately been reprinted in elegant form, with notes and portraits, by Charles I. Bushnell, Esq., of New York city, in an edition of one hundred copies for his own use. (See Appendix C.)

The following is the form of the freeman's oath as administered in 1634:

I, A: B. being by God's providence, an inhabitant & ffreeman within the jurisdiceon of this comonweale, doe heere sweare, by the greate & dreadfull name of the everlyveing God, that I will be true & faithfull to the same & will acordingly yeilde assistance & support thereouto, with my person & Estate, as in equity I am bound, and will also truely indeavor to mainetaine & preserve all the libertyes & previlidges thereof, submitting my selfe to the wholesome lawes & orders made & established by the same; and further that I will not plott nor practise any evill against it, nor consent to any that shall soe doe, but will timely discover and reveal the same to lawfull authority, nowe here established, for the speedy preventing thereof. Moreover I doe solemnly bynde myselfe in the sight of God, that when I shall be called to give my voice touching any such matter of this state, wherein ffreemen are to deal, I will give my vote & suffrage, as I shall judge in myne owne conscience may best conduce and tend to the publique weale of the body without respect of persons, or favour of any man. Soe help me God, in the Lord Jesus Christ.

APPENDIX B.

The first meeting-house at Wilton, N. H., was built in 1752. It was an inconsiderable building, used about twenty-one years and then demolished. The second meeting house which is now standing is a very decent, commodious building. At the raising of this meeting-house, Sept. 7, 1773, a distressing accident happened. When the frame was nearly completed, in consequence of the failure of a supporting timber, one of the beams broke and fell, and several men being on it at the same time fell with it, three of whom, George Lancey, Simeon Fletcher, and Reuben Stiles, were instantly killed. [Farmer & Moore's Hist. Coll. of N. H., vol. 1, p. 67.]

The following are the first six of forty stanzas composed by Nathaniel Allen, and published on the occasion.

- 1 Attention give, and you shall hear A melancholy theme, Of such an instance as there is But very seldom seen.
- 2 In seventeen hundred seventy-three, September, seventh day, At Wilton, did Almighty God His anger there display.
- 3 Of men a great collection met, A meeting-house to raise; Therein to speak God's Holy word, And for to sing His praise.
- 4 God did their labor prosper, in The erection of this frame; Until it was almost complete, And joyfull they became.
- 5 They that the worst was past and gone, And they grew bold and brave; Poor souls! how little did they think They were so near their grave.
- 6 All on a sudden broke a beam And let down fitty-three; Full twenty-seven feet they fell, — A shocking sight to see.

APPENDIX C.

"Narrative of the Captivity and Sufferings of Ebenezer Fletcher, of New Ipswich, who was severely wounded and taken prisoner at the battle of Hubbardston, Vt., in the year 1777, by the British and Indians, at the age of 16 years; after recovering in part, made his escape from the enemy, and travelling through a dreary wilderness, followed by wolves, and beset by tories on his way, who threatened to take him back to the enemy, but made his escape from them all, and arrived safe home. Written by himself, and published at the request of his friends. Fourth edition, revised and enlarged. New-Ipswich, N. H. Printed by S. Wilder, 1827."

I, EBENEZER FLETCHER, enlisted into the Continental Army, in Capt. Carr's Company, in Col. Nathan Hale's Regiment, as a fifer, and joined the Army at Tieonderoga, under the command of Gen. St. Clair, in the spring of 1777, at which place I was stationed till the retreat of the Army on the 6th of July following.

Early on the morning of the same day, orders came to strike our tents and swing our packs. It was generally conjectured that we were going to battle; but orders came immediately to march. We marched some distance before light. By sunrise the enemy had landed from their boats, and pursued us so closely as to fire on our rear. A large body of the enemy followed us all day, but kept so far behind as not to be wholly discovered. Their aim was to attack us suddenly next morning, as they did.

Having just recovered from the measles, and not being able to march with the main body, I fell in the rear. The morning after our retreat, orders came very early for the troops to refresh and be ready for marching. Some were eating, some were cooking, and all in a very unfit posture for battle. Just as the sun rose, there was a cry, "the enemy are upon us." Looking round I saw the enemy in line of battle. Orders came to lay down our packs and be ready for action. The fire instantly began. We were but few in number compared to the enemy. At the commencement of the battle, many of our party retreated back into the woods. Capt. Carr came up and says, "My lads advance, we shall beat them yet." A few of us followed him in view of the enemy. Every man was trying to secure himself behind girdled trees, which were standing on the place of action. I made shelter for myself and discharged my piece. Having loaded again and taken aim, my piece missed fire. I brought the same a second time to my face; but before I had time to discharge it, I received a musket ball in the small of my back, and fell with my gun cocked. My uncle, Daniel Foster, standing but little distance from me, I made out to crawl to him and spoke to him. He and another man lifted me and carried me back some distance and laid me down behind a large tree, where was another man crying out most bitterly with a grievous wound. By this time I had bled so freely, I was very weak and faint. I observed the enemy were like to gain the ground. Our men began to retreat and the enemy to advance. Having no friend to afford me any relief, every one taking care of himself, all things looked very shocking to me; to remain where I was and fall into the hands of the enemy, especially in the condition I was in, expecting to receive no mercy, it came into my mind to conceal myself from them if possible. I made use of my hands and knees, as well as I could, and crawled about two rods among some small brush, and got under a log. Here I lay concealed from the enemy, who came instantly to the place I lay wounded at. What became of my distressed partner I know not. The enemy pursued our men in great haste. Some of them came over the log where I lay. Some came so near I could almost touch them. I was not discovered by the enemy till the battle was over. When they were picking up the dead and wounded among the brush and logs. I heard them coming towards me, and began to be much terrified, lest I should be found. I flattered myself that our men would come back after the battle was over and take me off; but to my great surprise, two of the enemy came so nigh, I heard one of them say, "Here is one of the rebels." I lay flat on my face across my hands, rolled in my blood. I dared not stir, being afraid they meant me, by saying, "here is one of the rebels." They soon came to me, and pulled off my shoes, supposing me to be dead I looked up and spoke, telling them I was their prisoner, and begged to be used well. "Damn you," says one, "you deserve to be used well, don't you? What's such a young rebel as you fighting for?" One of these men was an officer, who appeared to be a pretty sort of a man He spoke to the soldier, who had taken my shoes, and says, "Give back the shoes and help the man into camp." My shoes were given back by the soldier according to order. The soldier then raised me upon my feet, and conducted me to the British camp. Here I found a number of my brother soldiers in the same situation as myself. I was laid on the ground and remained in this posture till the afternoon, before my wound was dressed. Two Doctors came to my assistance. They raised me up, and examined my back. One of them said, "My lad, you stood a narrow chance; had the ball gone in or out half its bigness, you must have been killed instantly." I asked him if he thought there was any prospect of my getting well again. He answered, "There is some prospect" I concluded by his reply, he considered my case hazardous. The Doctors appeared to be very kind and faithful. They pulled several pieces of my clothes from my wound, which were forced in by the ball I received.

Some of the enemy were very kind, while others were very spiteful and malicious. One of them came and took my silver shoe-buckles and left me an old pair of brass ones, and said exchange was no robbery; but I thought it robbery at a high rate. Another came and took off my neck handkerchief. An old negro came and took my fife, which I considered as the greatest insult I had received while with the enemy. The Indians often came and abused me with their language,—calling us Yankees and rebels,—but they were not allowed to injure us. I was stripped of everything valuable about me.

The enemy soon marched back to Ticonderoga, and left only a few to take care of the wounded. I was treated as well as I could expect. Doctor Haze was the head doctor, and he took true care that the prisoners were well treated. Doctor Blocksom, an under surgeon, appeared to be very kind indeed; he was the one who had the care of me. He never gave me any insulting or abusive language: he sometimes would say, "Well, my lad, think you'll be willing to list in the King's service if you should get well?" My answer was always no. The officers would flatter me to list in their service; telling me they were very sure to conquer the country, since they had got our strongest post. I told them I should not list.

But among all the troubles I met with, I received particular favors from two of the British. This conduct appeared to me very remarkable; why or wherefore it should be, I knew not; but He who hath the hearts of all men in his hands, gave me favor in their sight. They would often visit me, and asked me if I wanted anything to eat or drink. If I did, I had it. The first time one of these friends came to me was soon after I was brought to the camp.

As I lay on the ground, he asked me if I did not want a bed to lie on: I told him I did. He went and got a large hemlock bark, and finding many old coats and overalls, taken from the dead and wounded, he put them in the bark, made me a bed, and laid me into it. He built a shelter over me with barks, to keep the rain from me, which was a great kindness, as it rained exceeding hard the next night. He went to a spring, and brought me water as often as I wanted, which was very often, being very dry, my loss of blood occasioning much thirst. He asked me, also, if I wanted to eat. I answered, yes; for having eat but little that day, I was very faint and hungry. He told me he did not know as it was in his power to procure anything for me, but would go and try. After an absence of considerable time (certainly the time seemed long) he returned with a piece of broiled pork and broiled liver, telling me this was all the food he could get. I thanked him, and told him it was very good.

The next day, he came and told me he had orders to march, and must therefore leave me. Was very sorry he could stay no longer with me, but hoped somebody would take care of me. Taking me by the hand, he wished me well and left me.

The loss of so good a friend grieved me exceedingly; but I soon heard that my other friend was ordered to stay behind to help take care of the wounded. My spirits, which before were very much depressed, when I heard of this, were much exhiberated, and once more I felt tolerably happy. The difference in mankind never struck me more sensibly than while a prisoner. Some would do everything in their power to make me comfortable and cheerful, while others abused me with the vilest of language; telling me that the prisoners would all be hanged; that they would drive all the damned rebels into the sea, and that their next winter quarters would be in Boston. They certainly wintered in Boston; but, to their great disappointment and chagrin, as prisoners of war!

But to return. My wound being now a little better, I began to think of escaping from the enemy. Two of my fellow-prisoners agreed to accompany me,—one of them being well acquainted with the way to Otter Creek. This plan, however, failed; for before we had an opportunity for making our escape, Doctor Haze called upon my companions to be ready to march for Ticonderoga, telling them that the next morning they must leave this place. found, that as soon as the prisoners were able to ride, they were ordered to Ticonderoga. Being thus disappointed, I begged of the Doctor to let me go with them. Says he, "You are very dangerously wounded, and it is improper for you to ride so far yet, but as soon as you are able you shall go." Being thus defeated, I again resolved to run away, even if I went alone; and it was not long before I had an opportunity. As all the prisoners were sent off except such as were badly wounded, they thought it unnecessary to guard us very closely. I soon was able to go to the spring, which was at a little distance from the camp. Thither I often went for water for myself and the Hessians, who, by the way, appeared to be pleased with me. I often waited upon them, brought them water, made their beds, etc., and found my fare the better for it. I often walked out into the woods where the battle was fought; went to the tree where I was shot down, observed the trees which were very much marked with the balls. Looking around one day, I found some leaves of a Bible; these I carried into the camp, and diverted myself by reading them; for I felt much more contented when I had something to read. My friend, whom I have before mentioned, one day brought me a very good book, which he told me to keep as a present from him. This I heartily thanked him for, and whenever I was tired by walking, would lay down and read.

On the 22d of July, a number of men came down from Ticonderoga, with horses and litters sufficient to carry off the remainder of the wounded. Dr. Haze came to us and told us, that to-morrow we should all be carried where we should have better care taken of us. Says he, "I will send the orderly sergeant, who will see that your bloody clothes are well washed." This, he thought, would be very agreeable news to us. I pretended to be very much pleased, though I was determined never to go. I told the person who lay next to me that I intended to run away; desired him to make them believe I had taken the north road, if they inclined to pursue me, for I should take the south. Says he, "I will do all in my power to assist you, and wish it was possible for me to go with you."

I made it my business that day to procure provisions sufficient for my journey. I had spared a little bread from my daily allowance, and although dry and mouldy, yet it was the best to be had. I had a large jack-knife left, of which the enemy had not robbed I sold this for a pint of wine, thinking it would do me more good on my march than the knife—as the event proved. The wine I put in a bottle, and carefully stowed it in my pocket. I was hard put to it to get my shirt washed and dried before evening. However, agreeing with some to make their beds if they would dry my shirt, it was ready to put on by dark. I then went to my tent, took off my coat and jacket, and put on my clean shirt over my dirty one, and having filled my pockets with the little provision I had saved, I began to march homeward, shocless, reflecting what I should do for so material a part of my clothing. It came into my mind that one Jonathan Lambert had died of his wounds a day or two before, and left a good pair of shoes. Supposing my right to them equal to any other person, I took them and put them on.

It being dark, I went out undiscovered, and steered into the woods. After going a little way, I turned into the road and made a halt. Now was the trying scene! The night being very dark, everything before me appeared gloomy and discouraging; my wound was far from being healed; my strength much reduced by the loss of blood, pain, and poor living. Thus situated, to travel alone, I knew not where, having no knowledge of the way, I thought would be highly presumptuous. How far I should have to travel before I could reach any inhabitants, I could not tell. Indians, I supposed, were lurking about, and probably I might be beset by them and murdered, or carried back; and if I avoided them, perhaps I might perish in the wilderness.

Reflecting upon these things, my resolution began to flag, and I thought it most prudent to return and take my fate. I turned about and went back a few rods, when the following words struck me as if whispered in my ear: Put not your hands to the plough and look back. I immediately turned about again, fully resolved to pursue my journey through the woods; but before morning, had I been possessed of millions of gold, I would freely have given the whole to have been once more with the enemy. The road which I had to travel was newly opened, leading from Hubbardston to Otter Creek. The night being dark, and the road very crooked, I found it very difficult to keep it; often running against trees and rocks, before I knew I was out of it, and then it was with much trouble that I found it again, which sometimes I was obliged to do upon my hands and knees, and often up to my knees in mire.

About twelve o'clock, I heard something coming towards me: what it could be, I knew not. I halted and looked back: it was so dark I was at a loss to determine what it was, but thought it looked like a dog. That a dog should be so far from inhabitants, I thought very strange. I at once concluded that he belonged to the Indians, and that they were not far off. I however ventured to speak to him, and he immediately came to me. I gave him a piece of mouldy bread, which he eat, and soon appeared fond of me. first, I was afraid he would betray me to the Indians, but soon found him of service; for I had not gone far before I heard the noise of some wild beast. I had just set down to rest me, with my back against a tree, my wound being very painful, As the beast approached, my dog appeared very much frightened, — laid close down by me, and trembled as if he expected to be torn in pieces. I now began to be much terrified: I however set very still, knowing it would do no good to run. He came within two rods of me, and stopped. I was unable to determine what it was, but supposed it was a wolf. I soon found I was not mistaken. After looking at me some time, he turned about and went off; but, before long, returned with a large reinforcement. In his absence, I exerted myself to the utmost to get forward, fearing he would be after me again. After travelling about half an hour, I was alarmed with the most horrible howling, which I supposed to be near the tree which I rested by. Judge what my feelings were, when I found these beasts of prey were pursuing me, and expected every minute to be devoured by them! But, in the midst of this trouble, to my infinite joy, I discovered fires but a little way before me, which, from several circumstances, I was sure were not built by Indians. I therefore at once concluded they were fires of some sconting party of Americans, and I made great haste to get to them, lest I should be overtaken by the wolves, which were now but a little behind. I approached so near the fires as to hear men talk, when I immediately discovered them to be enemies. Thus disappointed, I knew not what course to take. If I continued in the woods, I should be devoured by wild beasts; for, having eat of the bodies which were left on the field of battle, they continued lurking for more. If I gave myself up to the enemy, I should certainly be carried back to Ticonderoga, and to Canada, and probably fare no better for attempting to rnn away. Which way to escape, I knew not. turned a little out of the path, and lay down on the ground to hear what was said by the enemy, expecting every moment they would discover me: the darkness of the night, however, prevented. These howling beasts approached as near the fires as they dared, when they halted, and continued their horrid yells for some time, - being afraid to come so nigh as I was. After the howling had ceased, I began to think of getting round the enemy's camp, being pretty certain that, as yet, I was not discovered. I arose from the ground, and took a course which I thought would carry me round the enemy's camp. After travelling a little way, I came to the foot of a high mountain. To go round it, I thought would carry me too much out of my course; I resolved, therefore, to ascend it. much difficulty, I arrived at the top, then took a tack to the right: travelling that course some time, I found I was bewildered and lost; and which way to go to find the road again, I knew not, having neither moon nor stars to direct me; so I wandered about in this wilderness till almost day, when I became so fatigued and worried that I was obliged to lay down again. Judge what a person's feeling's must be in such a situation!

I now repented of my ever leaving the enemy. Here I was lost in the woods, with but very little provision, my wounds extremely painful, and little or no prospect of ever seeing human beings again. Thus I lay and reflected, my dog walking round me like a faithful sentinel, till I fell asleep; but was soon alarmed with the noise of cannon, which I concluded, by the direction, must be at Ticonderoga. Never was sound more grateful to my ears than this cannon. I thought I might possibly live to reach the place, and though an enemy's camp. I would have given anything to be with them again.

Soon after the morning gum was fired, I heard the drums beat in the camp which I had visited in the night. This noise was still more grateful, for I was sure they were not at a great distance. With much difficulty, I got upon my legs again, with a determination to go to their camp. I found, however, that I could scarcely stand; for, having laid down when I was very sweaty, I had taken cold, and was so stiff and sore that I could hardly move. I now had recourse to my little bottle of wine, which relieved me very much, and then began to march towards the drums, which still continued beating.

After travelling a little way, I heard a cock erow, which appeared near the drinns. I thought it of little consequence which object to pursue, both being nearly in the same direction. But the noise of the drums soon ceased, and I steered for the other object, which soon brought me into open land, and in sight of a house. I got to the door just as the man arose from his bed. After the usual compliments, I asked him how far it was to the British encampments. He answered, about fifty rods. "Do you want to go to them?" says he. I never was more at a stand what reply to make. As none of the enemy appeared about the house. I thought if I could persuade this man to befriend me, I possibly might avoid them; but if he should prove to be a tory, and know from whence

I came, he would certainly betray me. I stood perhaps a minute without saying a word. He seeing my confusion, spoke again to me: "Come," said he, "come into the house." I went in and sat down. I will tell you, said I, what I want, if you will promise not to hurt me. He replied, "I will not injure you, if you do not injure us." This answer did not satisfy me, for, as yet, I could not tell whether he would be a friend or foe. I sat and viewed him for some minutes, and at last resolved to tell him from whence I came, and where I wished to go, let the event be what it would. I was a soldier, said I, in the Continental army, was dangerously wounded and taken prisoner, had made my escape from the enemy, and, after much fatigue and peril, had got through the woods, being directed to this house by the crowing of a cock. He smiled, and said, "You have been rightly directed; for had you gone to either of my neighbors, you undoubtedly would have been carried to the enemy again. You have now found a friend who will, if possible, protect you. It is true they have forced me to take the oath of allegiance to the king; but I sincerely hope the Americans will finally prevail, for I believe their cause to be just and equitable. Should they know of my harboring rebels, as they call us, I certainly should suffer for it. Anything I can do for you without exposing my own life, I will do." I thanked him for his kindness. and desired him not to expose himself on my account.

After giving me something to eat and drink, he concealed me in a chamber, where he said I might stay till the dew was off, and then go out into some secret place in the bushes, there to continue till night. This he said was necessary, as the enemy were often plundering about his house, and if I continued in it, I should probably be discovered, which would ruin him. A little boy was set as a sentinel at the door, who was to give notice if the enemy came near. I had not been in the house half an hour, before a number of them came in, but with no other design than to buy some rum and milk, and to borrow a pot for cooking.

As soon as they were gone, the woman came into the chamber to dress my wound. She washed it with rum, applied dressings, and bound it up as well as she could. She showed every mark of kindness to me; but her husband, whose name was Moulton, in a day or two after I got to his house, was pressed by the enemy to bring stores from Skeensborough [now White Hall] with his team, and I never saw the good old man any more. His wife was in much trouble lest the enemy should find me in the house and be so enraged as to kill all the family. She permitted her little boy to guide me to the bushes, where I might secrete myself: she gave me a blanket to lie on. The boy went with me to my lurking place, that I might be easily found, so as to receive refreshment. When night came on, I was called by the boy to the house again, and took my old stand in the chamber; the woman feared I should receive injury by lodging out of doors. She informed me that a man would lodge there that night who was brother-in-law to her husband, and who had actually taken up arms against his country. I told her I apprehended danger from tarrying in the house; she said there would not be any; I then lay snug in my straw.

In a short time, the tory came for some drink. The indiscreet woman told him she had an American in the chamber who had been taken prisoner by the British and had escaped. He asked her what kind of a man I was. She told him I was a young fellow, and wanted much to get home, and begged that I might not be taken back to the enemy or betrayed. His answer'was very rough, and I began to think I was gone for it. I expected to be forced back, but the woman interceding so hard for me, softened the ferocity of my tory enemy. Knowing I was discovered, I crawled from my hiding place, and began a conversation with the man. He asked me if $\hat{\mathbf{I}}$ belonged to the rebel service. I told him I belonged to the Continental service. "What is that," said he, "but the rebel service?" He addressed me in very insolent language, and said he was very sorry to have me leave the king's troops in the manner I had done, and he would have me to know I was in his hands. I was patient and mild in my situation, telling him I was at his disposal. good mistress often put in a word on my behalf.

After some time spent in this way, the man asked me if he should chance to be taken, and in my power as I was in his, whether I should let him escape. I told him I should. "Then," says he, "if you will promise this, I will not detain you; also, that if you are retaken before you reach home, you will not inform that you have seen me, or have been at my brother's." I gave him my His advice to me was immediately to set out, for if I should stay long I might be picked up by some person. "And," says he, "I advise you to travel in the night, and hide in the day, for many volunteers are reconnoitering up and down the country. I concluded to travel, but my feeling landlady thought it best to stay a few days longer. My friend tory said it was best for me to travel as soon as possible. "If you are determined to go to-night," said the woman, "I will dress your wound, and give you food for your journey." I told her I would go as soon as possible. She then dressed my wound for the last time, and filled my pockets with good provision. After thanking her for her kindness, — it being all the compensation I could make, and I believe all that she desired, — I left her.

But, before I proceed on my journey, I must tell you that my dog, who had accompanied me through many dangers, I was obliged to drive from me. When in the chamber, he would commonly lay at the foot of the stairs. Mrs. Moulton often told me she was afraid he would betray me; for, as the enemy were often in, should they see the dog, might suspect that somebody was in the chamber. I told her, with much regret, to drive him away. She, with her little boy, tried all in their power to get rid of him, but in vain; the dog would stay about the house. At length, she called me to drive him away. I came down, and, after much difficulty, effected it.

After being told the course I must take, I began But to return. my journey in the night, which was dark and cloudy, through the I had not travelled more than two hours before I got lost. I concluded I had missed the road, and, having reached the end of one I was then in, began to think of going back. My wound began to be very painful, and I was so sore I could scarcely go. While I was seeking for the road again, there came up a thunder shower, and rained fast. I crawled into an old, forsaken hovel, which was near, and lay till the shower was over; then went back half a mile, and found the road once more. The road being newly opened through the woods, was very bad, and it was with much difficulty I could get along, often tumbling over roots and stones, and sometimes up to my knees in mire. I once fell, and was obliged to lay several minutes before I could recover myself.

About twelve o'clock at night, as I was walking in this wilderness, I was surprised by two large, wild animals, which lay close by the road, and started up as soon as they saw me; ran a few rods, and turned about towards me. Whether they were bears or wolves, I could not tell; I was, however, exceedingly terrified, and would have given any thing for my dog again. One of them followed me for a long time; sometimes would come close to me, and at others, kept at a considerable distance. At last, he got discouraged and left me, and certainly I did not regret his absence.

At daylight, I came to open land, and discovered a house belonging to Col. Mead. I was not a little rejoiced to see his house, as I knew he would be a friend to me; but my joy was of short continuance, for as soon as I looked into the door, I saw marks of the enemy, everything belonging to the house being carried off or destroyed. I thought it not prudent to go into the house, lest some of the enemy might be within, so I passed on as fast as possible. It now began to grow light, and what to do with myself I could not tell. My friends had advised me to lay concealed in the day-time and travel in the night.

When I viewed the depredations the enemy had made on the inhabitants,—and many of whom had fled; not knowing how far I must travel to find friends, and my wound being very trouble-some, I reflected long, whether to tarry and be made prisoner, or push forward through a dreary wilderness. Death seemed to threaten me on all sides: however, I collected resolution sufficient to make to the east. I conceived myself exposed by my uniform and bloody clothes. To prevent a discovery by any who should be an enemy, I took off my shirt and put it over my coat, by which my uniform was covered. In this line I marched; it being the orders of the British for all tories, who came to join them, to appear in this dress, I considered myself protected.

I travelled till the middle of the day, before I saw any person. I then met a man driving cattle, as I supposed, to the enemy. He examined me closely, and inquired if I was furnished with a pass. I gave him plausible answers to all his questions, and so far satisfied him as to proceed unmolested. I inquired of him if he knew one Joshua Priest. He told me he did, and very readily directed me to the place where he lived. Leaving this man, I had not travelled far before I met a number more, armed; being within about fifty rods of them, I thought to hide myself, but found I could not: I then made towards them without any apparent fear. Coming up to them, I expected a strict examination; but they only asked me how far it was to such a town. I informed them as well as I could, and pushed on my way.

Being within a mile and a half of said Priest's, I saw two men making towards me; they came to a fence and stopped. I heard them say, "Let's examine this fellow, and know what his business is." One of them asked me where I was going. I told him to Joshua Priest's. He asked me my business there. I answered him, upon no bad errand. He says, "You are a spy." I told him I was no spy. I did not like the fellow's looks, therefore dropped the conversation with him, believing he was one of the enemy. I resolved not to converse with any one, till I had arrived at Priest's, unless compelled to. Being almost overcome with fatigue, I wished for rest; however, these men seemed determined to stop me or do me some mischief, for when I walked on, they followed me upon the run, and in great rage told me I should go no farther until I had made known to them who and what I was; saying, they had asked me a civil question, and they required a civil answer. I told them if they would go to Priest's, I would tell them all the truth, and satisfy them entirely,—repeating to them I was no spy. They said they did not mean to leave me till they were satisfied respecting me. I then, in short, told them what I had before in the whole, and added, that I was well acquainted with Priest, and intended to tarry with him some time.

We all arrived at Priest's, who at first did not recollect me. After some pause, he told me he was surprised to see me, as my father had informed him I was slain at Hubbardston. I told him I was yet alive, but had received a bad wound. His family soon dressed my wound, and made me comfortable.

I then, in the presence and hearing of my tory followers, told Priest the story of my captivity and escape; also repeated the insolent language used by the tories towards our people when prisoners with the enemy. Finding Priest my friend, I said many severe things against the tories, and fixed my countenance sternly on those fellows who had pretended to lord it over me, and stop me on the way. They have all without saying a word, but looked as surly as bulls.

I soon found these tory gentry had premeditated carrying me back, and were seeking help to prosecute their design. My friend Priest loaded his gun, and said he would give them a grist if they dared come after me: but failing of getting any persons to join them, I was not molested.

I could often hear my tory followers' threatenings against me, to take me back, saying I should be able to fight again, and do injury to the enemy. I feared these tories would do hurt; but my fears were quieted by finding the neighbors were my friends, and would afford me their protection. But I will write one more tory plan.

After being at Priest's about ten days, there came, one morning, a number of persons to see me, and appeared very friendly and much concerned lest I should be taken by the enemy. They informed me a man had arrived from Burgoyne's army, and a party of Indians was to be sent forward to guard the town where I was, and protect the tories and their property,—our people coming twice while I was at Priest's to take tory property. These people told me an honest story, and advised me to travel immediately. Being desirous to get home, I told my friend Priest I would not stay any longer. He says, "Don't be scared, I apprehend no danger from the Indians, tarry yet awhile, for your wound is not healed. You are not able to travel through the woods; but do as you think best." These men cried out, "Escape, escape, for your life: Indians will be upon you before to-morrow night."

Having resolved to go on, my friends furnished me with provisions sufficient for my journey. Without doubts or fears, I went on my way; and after travelling all day, I arrived at a place called Ludlow. From this town the people all fled and left their habitations. Great was my disappointment! I spent the night in a melancholy manner, having neither fire nor bed to comfort my shivering and impaired body.

About day, I set out from the dreary house which had sheltered me in the night. By travelling, I found I had taken cold, and my wound was very painful—Desponding, I thought it best to go back about seven miles to some inhabitants, rather than to proceed homeward. Just before night, I arrived at the place of the inhabitants, seven miles back, who received me kindly, and took special care of my wound.

Just before sunset of the third day after my departure, I came to my old friend Priest's again, who appeared very glad to see me. Now it was not any friendship in my tory visitors who advised me to escape, but for fear I should betray them,—their reports afterwards proving a lie.

At my old friends I remained six weeks: in the meantime my wound was almost healed. I was hospitably entertained by him.

Having heard that one Mr. Atwell, belonging to New Marlborough, was in the neighborhood with a team to move a family, I agreed with him for a horse to ride. After a journey of a few days, I safely arrived at New Ipswich, and once more participated the pleasure of seeing and enjoying my friends, and no enemy to make me afraid.

Not long afterwards, an officer from the army hearing of my return, ordered me to be arrested and returned to the main body of the American army, although my wound was scarcely healed. In a few weeks, I joined my corps, then stationed in Pennsylvania, having yet two years to serve my country in the tented field.

We afterwards went on an expedition against the Indians, to the Genesee country, a long and tedious march, commanded by Gen. Sullivan, where we drove the savages before us, burnt their huts, destroyed their corn. The first Indian settlement we came to was called "Tianger," where they lay in ambush, in a thick wood on a hill, where they fired on our men and killed seven. After that, we were ordered to march in the following order: The army was divided into four columns, and the head of each column had a horn or trumpet, and each of these divisions marched as far apart as they could hear each other sound. We marched in this line all the way afterward; if we had not, they undoubtedly would have waylaid and killed us all. There were two men that left their place and went out from the main body and were taken by the Indians and tortured to death in the most cruel manner.

Our provision was like to fail: we had to go on half allowance a long time, or we should have starved. Finding few enemies to contend with in that quarter, as they were not disposed to meet us in the open field, we received the gladly-obeyed orders to return to New England, where we remained the ensuing autumn. Nothing more of importance, to me or the reader, occurred, until the three long years rolled away, except when in Pennsylvania, I had the honor of being acquainted with Gen. Washington and Gen. Lafayette, and then I received my discharge [March 30, 1780].

And now, kind reader, wishing that you may forever remain ignorant of the real sufferings of the veteran soldier from hunger and cold, from sickness and captivity, I bid you a cordial adieu.
